Questions and answers from questions submitted by plan holders:

Question 1: Is there any option to build containment dikes, training dikes, use turbidity curtains, etc to begin pumping the MCA before the breakwaters have been constructed and accepted?

Response: No. See Paragraph 3.1.1 of Section 32 71 00 – Marsh Creation. The project is designed to maximize the retention of hydraulically placed sediments within the Marsh Creation Areas and therefore must be fully contained during hydraulic fill placement activities. However, if the bid alternates are awarded, hydraulic fill placement could occur in the south MCA, following the construction and acceptance of south breakwaters and ECDs, while construction of north breakwaters and ECDs occur simultaneously, and vice versa.

Question 2: Will weather days be accounted for in the construction timeline?

Response: See Paragraph 15 of Item XIII – Supplemental General Conditions.

Question 3: The geogrid typical section shows the grid extending 26 ft past the breakwaters on the leeward side. Is this extension included in the estimated quantity of SY of geosynthetics?

Response: Yes, the required overhang for the geogrid was included in the estimated quantities. The estimated quantities are the sum of estimated footprint the woven geotextile below the bedding stone and the geogrid below the armor stone with required overlap will be installed. Refer to Paragraph 1.3.4 of Section 35 31 23 – Breakwaters for more details regarding how the estimated quantities were calculated.

Question 4: Regarding the length of timber pilings to be used for signage: can shorter (30 ft) pilings be used given the shallow water depth?

Response: Place your bid based on the 40 ft piles shown in the Drawings.

NOTE: Other questions have been submitted regarding the Byrnewood staging area, insurance requirements, and a past project in the area. Responses to these questions will be issued in a future addendum.
